Repository Enoch Pratt Free Library Special Collections

Title Almanacs Collection

Date 19th-20th c.

Extent 1.75 Linear feet

Language English

Books [Box] 1-4

Abstract The Almanacs Collection consists of general and health almanacs from the 19th-20thc. The general almanacs provide advertisements for the sale of durable goods and include astrological calendars. The health almanacs feature home remedies and tonics for common ailments and even more serious health issues. Also included is the series, Little Journeys to the Homes of Great Men, which provides an account of the lives of notable men, such as Andrew Carnegie, Robert Owen, and others. None of the items in the series display any continuity in date and/or in subject.

Scope and Contents note

The Almanacs Collection was originally housed in the Miscellaneous Collection of the Special Collections department at the Enoch Pratt Free Library. The first series of almanacs consists of a variety of information and advertisements. For example, astrological charts and weather predictions are included as well as how to conduct a marriage ceremony. Also, there are advertisements for soap, sewing machines, typewriters and even the practice of phrenology. The second series, "Little Journeys to the Homes of Great Men," provides general accounts of the lives of notable men, such as, Andrew Carnegie, Robert Owen and others as role models. The final series, Medicines and Home Remedies, captures a glimpse into health concerns and remedies used at the time. For example, the medical almanacs consists of how various ailments, such as, inflammation of the stomach, eyes, kidneys, liver as well as rheumatism and arthritis can be treated with tonics, baths or simple home remedies.
