Scope and Contents note

The Bookplate Collection contains more than 7,000 bookplates. Mrs. Bevan donated the bookplates, which are in blue binders, with each bookplate mounted on paper. These binders are not in the best of shape and some of the pages are falling out. They are arranged by part and volume numbers (ex. Part I, Vol. II), starting with armorial bookplates. Four of these volumes deal specifically with Maryland. There is also a bookplate database on the Special Collections share-drive holding more than 1,200 bookplates. The boxes and folders not included in this database are:

Boxes 1-4: contain newsletters, "Bookplates in the News" Boxes 5 & 6: contain bookplates that arrived with correspondence, through a trade Box 10, Folder 61: contains bookplates that arrived with correspondence, through a trade Box 10a: contains Benjamin Barnes Lovett bookplate, four stacks of the same plate Box 12, Folder 73: contains bookplates that arrived with correspondence, through a trade Box 12a-12c: contain Bertha R. Steiner bequests that are duplicated in the Edith R. Bevan volumes Box 13-Folders 76 & 77: contain bookplates that arrived with correspondence, research materials and news clippings Box 14-14f: contain duplicate bookplates from the Edith R. Bevan volumes Box 18: contains bookplate catalogs and oversized materials

Arrangement note

The collection is not divided into series. There is a box and folder-level container list at the end of this document. The collection contains various materials including actual bookplates, correspondence, news clippings, bookplate catalogs, and proofs. Also, included in the correspondence are bookplate exchange letters. Exchanges were a way for bookplate collectors and designers to freely share their creations or collections with other collectors. The first three boxes of the collection contain a newsletter called, "Bookplates in the News," spanning from 1971 to 1993. "Bookplates in the News," was a quarterly publication put out by the American Society of Bookplate Collectors and Designers. For those bookplates not in the database, they are arranged alphabetically by the owner of the bookplate.

Immediate Source of Acquisition note

The Bookplate Collection contains more than 7,000 bookplates donated by various owners over a 30 year period. Edith R. Bevan donated the bulk of the collection, which spans 1939 to 1955. Mrs. Bevan had been a collector of bookplates since 1909 and kept her bookplates in bound, mounted volumes. Also adding to the collection was Miss Bertha R. Steiner, sister of Dr. Bernard C. Steiner, former Enoch Pratt Free Library director. Miss Steiner donated her collection of bookplates during the 1940s, which were then added into the Bevan donation. The Bookplate Collection originally resided in the Fine Arts Department of the Library, until the collection was moved to the Special Collections Department.
