Team Firestorm | Blood On The Thames

Aug 7th, 1888: Quincy Ernest, the owner of a shipping company in London, is found dead, drowned within the river, a spiral cut up his leg. Minerva "Mini" Ernest wakes up from a nightmare, much like she has most nights since her husband died a month ago. Detective William Usher has arrived, asking Mini to join him at the station. She is horrified to learn there has been another death, another crime, another body. Still reeling from this revelation, her beloved maid, Simone, collapses, coughing vile blood. Can Mini save the people closest to her from such a grisly demise?

Boba Studios | Squirrely Roo Rabbit

When scorned chameleons swap the colors of the other animals in their papercraft forest, Squirrely Roo, a hybrid animal unaffected by the change, springs into action with her chameleon-outcast friend, Cammie, to return peace to the world. Powered by fruit, Squirrely Roo and Cammie explore new lands and solve their puzzles!

Squirrely Roo Rabbit is an in-development, 2.5D, puzzle-adventure game based on color theory and featuring a visual style reminiscent of watercolor pop-up storybooks.

Boba Studios is a women-owned indie game studio in Baltimore, MD.

UMBC Capstone Project | King Scribble

King Scribble is a 2D puzzle platformer game where you draw the platforms! Play as the titular King Scribble, the benevolent, beloved ruler of the Doodle Kingdom who has been tragically whisked away from his throne by a surprise tornado. Traverse tricky terrain through the power of drawing in order to make it back home to your loyal subjects. The twist: the more platforms you draw into existence, the more of your own scribbly body mass you draw from in the process.

Aaron Oldenburg | Returning... as...

Returning... as... is an experimental VR project created to explore feelings of isolation, loss, and environmental instability. Players interact with a dynamic virtual balcony in silhouette, surrounded by a shifting and consuming landscape and a swarm of glowing pixels that transform into ambiguous figures with varied behaviors. These figures are partially subject to the player's agency but ultimately exist independently within an ever-changing environment shaped by waves of enveloping blackness.

The project leverages open-source tools and minimalist aesthetics to create a fluid, immersive space where 2D and 3D elements merge. Interactivity emphasizes unpredictability, reflecting themes of connection and disconnection as players navigate ambiguity and shifting boundaries.

The work draws from personal and collective experiences of uncertainty, particularly during the current climate crisis, exploring in the dark, ambiguous space of the silhouette, the constantly-shifting boundaries of our knowledge. Through unstable visuals and emergent gameplay, Returning... as... invites reflection on agency, anxiety, and the impact of the uncontrollable.
